Solitaire Home Inspection Pre-Listing Checklist For Sellers

Nothing drives down the asking price of your home like the cost of repairs. A few missing shingles or a leaking pipe can give a buyer more leverage during negotiations, forcing you to accept a lower price.

Naturally, you want to recoup as much as possible when selling your home. Doing so starts by looking at your home objectively and through the eyes of a prospective buyer. One of the best ways to do this would be to use a Home Inspection Checklist. Please note, this list is meant to identify potential minor to major deficiencies, and does not focus on cosmetic deficiencies that are less likely to impact the value of your home.

Why Do You Need a Checklist?

As a seller, a Home Inspection Checklist can yield a number of benefits. These include:

1. You can repair any major problems your home prior to listing. This helps keep your asking price more in line with the actual condition of your home. A reasonably priced house tends to draw more buyers and sell faster.
2. This checklist gives you an idea of what a professional inspector will be looking for in your home. If you can anticipate and address any issues, you increase your odds of getting a favourable report, which can significantly speed up the sale process.
3. A checklist and a little extra research can help you rank which repairs will yield the highest ROI for your home.

Please Note:

This checklist should not be relied upon as a home inspection report, nor should it be considered a substitute for a home inspection. This list is representative, but NOT exhaustive.
